

July 28, 2003

HARARE, Zimbabwe -- Zimbabwe's high court has deferred a ruling that was set for today on opposition leader Morgan Tsvangirai's request that treason charges against him be dismissed, a defense attorney said.

Tsvangirai and two senior colleagues in the Movement for Democratic Change could face death sentences if convicted of plotting to assassinate Zimbabwean President Robert Mugabe in 2001.